

Receptions and Galas

Impress your guests while they mingle

Opening nights, launch parties, cocktail receptions; add something amazing to the mix. Something to break the ice, get people talking, and make your event something they won't forget.

Conventional "strolling" entertainment has a tendency to get lost in the sea of people at your event. It will often miss out on people who want to see it, and risk interrupting people who may not want to be interrupted.

Simon Coronel's approach fixes this issue. By setting up a highly visible section of the room where the world class sleight-of-hand illusions are taking place, every interested guest can mingle past and enjoy.

It makes a bigger visual splash at your event, provides people with a great icebreaking excuse ("Have you seen the guy changing $5 bills into $50's? It's amazing; let me take you over there...") and avoids interrupting people who are focused on their conversations.
